WOMAN LEADS IN RESCUES AT FIRE

Pulls Ladders Over Fence and Raises Them to Windows of Flaming Hotel—One Man Badly Burned.

(Special to The Evening World.)

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Dec. 4.—Twenty lives were placed in jeopardy by a fire which gutted the Amazon Hotel at No. 201 Nelson street early today. The firemen and volunteer rescuers worked until all the inmates of the building were saved, although one man was badly burned.

Mrs. Edward Gallagher, who lived near the hotel, distinguished herself in the heroic rescue.

Firemen who had been working on her house left some ladders in her yard. She seized two of these, dragged them over the fence and to the hotel, and placed them against the walls, and half a dozen men climbed down from the roof.

Charles Straube, an iron moulder, was cut off from the stairs. He leaped out of a window, with the flames behind him, and his clothing was burned to his back. He was carried down a hallway ladder and taken to the Wells hospital, and is in a precarious condition.

The mother and sisters of James H. Straube, proprietor of the hotel, are now in the hospital.

AGED WOMAN FOUND FAMISHED ON CAR

After wandering aimlessly about the city for a day and a half, Mrs. Catherine Conklin, seventy-two years old, was found at Manhattan street and Twelfth avenue early to-day and taken to her home, at No. 142 West Sixty-fifth street.

She was weak from exposure and hunger. The aged woman's family notified the police early yesterday and a general alarm was sent out. The conductor on a car near the Fort Lee Ferry told Policeman Larkin an aged woman on his car needed attention. Larkin recognized her and had her taken home. She was dejected and could not tell where she had been.
